A New Back for an Old One. How It Can be Done in Norway.

The back aches at times with a dull, indistinguishable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Norway residents would do well to profit by the following example.

Irving Merrill, Pleasant St., South Paris, Me., says: "A few months ago I began to suffer from pains in the small of my back. After being in a stooped position for any length of time I found it very difficult to straighten. The pain and lameness clung to me for some time and when I saw that the kidney secretions were unnatural and irregular in passage, I decided that my kidneys were affected. I then procured Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking the contents of three boxes, the pain disappeared. I am now free from the kidney difficulty. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to any person suffering from disordered kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts.

WEST SUMMER.

The Big Elm. It is a thought sublime That o'er the wrecks of time This tree has stood so long. So sturdy and so strong. And grand it still will be. For it will bend and sway. And may it never fail. To mock the meddling axe. Its future grandeur none can tell. I somehow trust 'twill all be true. But who will then its record keep? When I am sleeping my last sleep?

This big elm tree standing on High street, planted by H. Howe 55 years ago, and measuring 10 ft. 8 in. in circumference, has had a long and vigorous growth.

New Jury Law.

There was a change made in the jury law by the last legislature which went into effect at this term of court. Heretofore juries were impaneled alphabetically, and thus the superintendents were always those whose name began with the last letter of the alphabet. The law embodying the change read as follows:

When venues for jurors are returned to court, the clerk shall, at the commencement of each term prepare an alphabetical list of the names of the several persons returned as traverse jurors; and before they are empaneled the court shall cause to be drawn by lot the names of the first jury, and shall be empaneled by the first two being sworn and the other 10 in succession as they are drawn, and in such divisions as the court directs. At the same time, and the next 12 so drawn shall be empaneled and sworn in a like manner and shall compose the second jury.

Fashion Dictates.

A Veil Hint. If one wants to look both ugly and slovenly let the veil stretch and hang loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else the appearance of a woman is ruined.

Button Trimming. Recent news from the fashion makers assure us that buttons will be as extensively used as trimming on the smart gowns of the coming season as they were used on those of the season past.

Velvet in Favor.

Velvet has returned to favor not only in millinery, but in coat and princess dress forms and popularly, for the trimming of coat collars, where a change is needed from the moire and satin forms generally worn, says Harper's Bazar.

Many fancy dress costumes are shown in black and colored velvet. They are about twenty-eight inches long, though an occasional one may be forty. They are lined with white or light satin and are fastened by embroidered simply or elaborately, according to the taste of the wearer. Such velvet dress costumes being advanced for the matron are tight-fitting with slightly flaring skirts.

When Making House Dresses.

In making up a shirtwaist frock of available material that is to see hard work it is a good idea to make two waists to one skirt. The skirt wears twice as long as the blouse, and in this way the life of the frock is prolonged.

They will fade unequally? Not a bit of it, if the waists are worn alternately, not keeping one till the other is worn out.

Another useful tip for the morning frock is to have a pocket made of the material with white pique ties for a four in hand. There should be at least two to each waist as a frock that is worked in gets soiled more quickly in the collar than elsewhere. If the skirt is not detachable the blouse must often go to the tub before its time.

Have the skirts cut to clear the ground by two inches, and do not select a model with many plaits if laundering is an item. With such costumes covered by an apron, a woman is presentable at any minute, though she does her own housework.

The Age Limit for Maids.

Every unmarried woman in the United States is grateful to Mrs. Glendower Evans of Boston. Not because Mrs. Evans is the promoter of a bank for old maids. Many of the unmarried women assert that they prefer mixed banks—that is, banks for both sexes.

The gratitude is for Mrs. Evans' act in moving on the age limit of old maidhood. "No woman should be called an old maid until she has passed 40," asserts this unique philanthropist. And all the single women in the United States say, "What a clever woman!"

Everyone who isn't over 40 can recall when it was the custom for girls to marry at 16 and 17 and to have inward tremors of misgiving if at 18 they were still unwed. The girl of 22 with no steady beau was an object of commiseration by all who knew her, and at 25 she was hopelessly across the line that separated the "girl" with matrimonial prospects from the "old maid" with none.

By some subtle means, it is true, the age limit was unconsciously advanced to 28 years. Eventually it reached 30. Before the march of the financial and industrial progress of women the 30-year boundary line receded. Waiting for a time, it was at last pushed to 35. There it has remained until the good Mrs. Glendower Evans made official proclamation for all cloddish that the rubicon of girlhood was not passed until 40.

It was while she was presenting her plan for the Old Maids' Bank to the Massachusetts Insurance Commission that she made the statement: "In this age of enlightenment no unmarried woman is an old maid until she has passed 40." And the Massachusetts Insurance Commission nodded its concurrence.

If a depositor in the Old Maids' bank foregoes the blessedness of the single life she may receive a goodly amount for the beginning of housekeeping. If she has preserved all that state until the age of 50, when even hopeful Mrs. Glendower Evans admits her chances for marriage are negligible, she begins to receive a regular annuity.

The White Pine Blight.

The white-pine blight is a complex of several diseases which have been known to have persisted longest in many localities. Its cause is as yet undetermined. It was then less prevalent in 1908 than in 1907, and many affected trees have partially recovered, while new ones became diseased. This is believed to be the most important form of blight.

The blight is caused by Lophodermium may occur another season if the weather is especially favorable for the fungus, but serious damage from this disease is not at all common. The other two blights are of a more insidious character and have thus far caused no permanent damage. Any or all of them may not occur again in the next ten years, and they may recur within one or two years, though this is not likely.

The total damage caused by the blight is comparatively light, only scattering trees having yet been killed. Trees die constantly from the effect of competition among themselves, from the attacks of insects, from root-rot, and from lightning, and the timber owner must be careful not to confuse trees killed by the blight with those killed by the blight.

Those trees which are so badly diseased, as to be unable to recover ought to be cut and utilized, for the same reasons that any dying tree should be removed from the forest. There is absolutely no reason known at present for cutting trees that are able to recover or that are healthy.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

A New Declaration of Peace.

We want a world agreement for universal peace.

We want our disarmed war vessels and battleships turned into a White Fleet, a Public University of Travel that will tour the world every year.

We want these ships manned by the best instructors in the Foreign Art, Literature, Travel, Sociology, Human Nature and Universal Brotherhood.

We want the students selected by all-around merit from the graduates of Public High schools and Industrial High schools of all states.

We want this post-graduate year of travel given at the expense of the nation, the students cooperating systematically in all the work done aboard ship. We believe in these things.

We speak the Word for them. We pray for them.

We talk for them.

We work for them.

We vote to this end.—[Nautilus.

Feeding Farm Hands.

Every farmer's wife knows what tremendous appetites farm hands usually have; but while they eat well they work well, too.

Here's a good suggestion about feeding farm hands. Give them plenty of Quaker Oats. A big dish of Quaker Oats porridge with sugar and cream or milk is the greatest breakfast in the world for a man who needs vigor and strength for a long day's work. The man that eats Quaker Oats plentifully and often is the man who does good work without excessive fatigue. There is a sustaining quality in Quaker Oats not found in other foods, and for economy it is at the head of the list. Besides the regular size packages Quaker Oats is packed in large size family packages, with and without china.

The North Pole.

The derivation of the word pole, as applied to the Earth's North and South Pole, is from the Greek word meaning pivot, hinges or axis and has no connection whatever with the pole that is derived from a Teutonic root.

For a long time it was supposed that the earth revolved absolutely and smoothly along this invisible line. It is one of the greatest discoveries in physics and mathematics to find that this is not so, that the earth wobbles somewhat just as a top does when spinning, a fact that every schoolboy knows.

The amount of wobbling has been estimated, or rather defined, as 26 feet from the actual pole, so that it is proper to speak of the Poles as having extent beyond a point. It would be a circle 52 feet in diameter, although there is an exact axis just as there is one for a top no matter how much it wobbles in spinning.

At the North Pole time is nothing and if one were residing at the North Pole it would be unnecessary to wind one's watch. You are always at 12 o'clock and can't walk out of the hotel without walking South. All times of day meet at the Pole, as the meeting place of all the meridians.

A man sitting with the invisible mathematical point right under him would be in all 24 hours at once. Or a 24-hour watch placed on the Pole could be made to point to the correct time in every part of the world.

Dr. Cook and Commander Peary knew when they had reached the North Pole, in the same way that mariners on the ocean are able to compute their exact location by means of chronometer, sextant and nautical almanac. Any first class mariner can tell by observations of the sun or the stars his location within a few feet, depending wholly upon the accuracy of his observations and of his instruments. As mariners easily find their way all over the seven seas it can be seen that Cook and Peary had no trouble.

Moreover, in making government surveys, establishing meridians or locations, it is common to call in scientists who use exactly the same methods as the mariner only usually they are able to make more checks on their calculations. One of the methods employed by mariners where great accuracy is required is to look through a small telescope at the motions of the satellites of Jupiter and make computations by comparing locations with data found in nautical almanacs.

Dropping for the moment that exciting controversy as to who was first at the North pole and assuming the claims of Dr. Cook to be true, a question naturally presents itself as to the relative merits of the work of the expedition consisting of Dr. Cook and two Eskimo guides and the expedition headed by Commander Peary and numbering in its membership men of undoubted scientific attainments.

From what has been already printed, it is evident that the men of the Peary party did a large amount of scientific work. They studied carefully the regions through which they passed. They appeared from time to time and the members carried on independently investigations of admitted value. Assuming that Dr. Cook did such scientific work as it was possible for a man in his position to do, the sum total must necessarily be small in comparison with that accomplished by the Peary forces. And the Peary party was able to throw light on some of the history of arctic exploration.

The discoveries by Donald McMillan of the camps of previous explorers are the basis for one of the most interesting stories of the far north ever printed. It is safe to say that in the years to come, after the controversy as to who was actually first at the pole has been settled, if it ever can be conclusively disposed of, the Peary expedition will take first rank in the eyes of the scientific world. It has added material to the world's stock of knowledge. Its work, too, seems to have been done in a spirit of hearty cooperation. It is impossible to read the interviews with its various members without finding between the lines indications of the team work which contributes materially to the success of any enterprise involving the efforts of a number of individuals.

Good Words for Co-Education.

The loss of home life is one of the principal charges brought against our present system of education, says one authority on co-education. "In the old family life, now, sad enough to say, a thing of the past, where children grew up with brothers and sisters of a large family, womanhood had its chance.

"Now, when the only child becomes less and less of a rarity, the putting together of boys and girls while they are little, in circumstances where the natural wholesome degree they may live out of natural, wholesome lives—this association becomes even more a necessity.

"We separate them rigidly from each other while they are young; we separate them during all the time when association with each other would bring everything of good in each to the other, and we throw them together again at an age when, by the very force of this unnatural separation, they have learned to look upon each other as a danger to certain young women of to-day is a growing aversion from the consideration of falling in love and of marriage, which seems to me to be a very unfortunate characteristic.

"The modern girl who takes life, and especially her school life, seriously issues forth from her school with a supreme contempt of young men; she won't look at any one under 50. Young men, who are generally seen to them may be very much to look at, but at any rate they are the natural companions of young women, and more and more the seriously educated girl of to-day is getting to despise the idea of marriage as something beneath contempt.

"I submit that this is a very great pity, and here again one feels that ignorance must be at the back of the contempt. A girl with a lot of brothers—that is, if she is given any chance of making friends by acquaintance by meeting them at home—is never contemptuous of lads and young men. Separate girls from their natural counterparts, boys, and you make them hard and they lose that gentle, potential meekness which the world and men can ill do without."

You Can Lead a Horse to Water, but—

The bartender grasped the man next to the stove by the shoulder and shook him until he was awake.

"Here, Zeph," he told him, "you'd better get out and get some fresh air. I'll do you good."

Zeph merely grunted, drunkenly, and shuffled back in his chair.

The bartender tried it again with like result.

"You won't get out, won't you?" he roared angrily. Seizing the unfortunate Zeph by the collar and the seat of the trousers, he escorted him forcibly to the alley.

"Get out there in the air and brace up," was his parting advice.

"Y' kin put me out if y' like, but!" Zeph straightened up with drunken dignity—"ye can't make me take no air, durn ye!"

The Home of the Holstein.

Holland is a small country, reclaimed from the sea by throwing up massive dikes to keep back the water when the tides are in. It is self-evident that the land is very valuable, for the annual rental paid for land that nothing but good cows could be kept with profit.

Cows are kept because they were found profitable, the cause for the entire country being 9,000 pounds of milk per year. They were brought to this high standard from necessity because of the high rental and small acreage.

Suffering Ended.

Frank Kimball Sells the Remedy that Cured Stomach Trouble of 14 years.

And best of all Frank Kimball guarantees to cure you or money back. Read this:

"I have been a great sufferer for 14 years, everything I ate gave me heartburn. I have never been able to get anything that would give me any relief until a friend of mine insisted on my taking Mi-o-na. I took a 50 cent box and I believe I am entirely well."

F. M. Bryant, Newman, Ga., June 5th.

Mi-o-na is not a nostrum; it is the prescription of a celebrated physician who is a specialist in stomach diseases.

One clever woman calls Mi-o-na the Sunshine Prescription, because it changed her from a miserable, nervous dyspeptic into a bright, healthy, happy woman in a few weeks.

These little Mi-o-na tablets are surely wonder workers. They absolutely cure indigestion whether acute or chronic.

They stop belching, gas in stomach, and heaviness, in a few minutes. Distress after eating, vanishes as if by magic when one or two little Mi-o-na tablets are swallowed.

Only 50 cents a box at leading druggists everywhere, and in Norway by Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes drug store. Test sample free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y. 41-43.

[Another Communication.]
Blood Tels. Results Count.

A communication appears in the last issue of the "Oxford Advertiser" bearing the startling head line "Should Blood Tels.?" Evidently the writer did not thoroughly enjoy the action of the committee appointed by the Oxford County Agricultural Society, which at the recent fair awarded the blue ribbon to the animal which, according to the combined judgment of that committee, deserved first premium in that particular class. Let us suggest that probably the committee did not see fit to base its decision upon the amount of cash which the owner or owners, perhaps unwittingly, invested in so-called "highly bred thoroughbreds."

It is fair to presume that the committee, made up of men who not only know good stock when they see it, but also have the courage to register their judgment and stand by their convictions, concluded that the merit system was good enough for them, and that in judging sires it was a fair proposition to take into consideration makef results. The real goods are sometimes distinguishable from gold bricks, and the men who pass honest judgment in relation thereto, easily survive any amount of unjust criticism. Thoroughbred stock unquestionably is desirable, but imported sires are not necessarily superior to those American bred. Breeders of high class stock are looking to results, but the price of the animal does not necessarily indicate his superior qualities.

OTISFIELD GRANGE FAIR.
Otisfield Grange held their second annual fair, Thursday, Sept. 22nd, at Spurs Corner. It was a decided success and satisfactory to all concerned. The fancywork, fruit and vegetables in the hall upstairs were very nice. The fruit and vegetables made a fine showing.

The judges on the fancywork were Mrs. True Winslow, Otisfield; Mrs. Dana Stewart, Harrison; and Mrs. Warren, Oxford. Mrs. R. J. Bruce took first prize on a dolly, made of linen spun by Maria Bees Brennan about 1840. Elizabeth McConie aged 89, took 1st prize in two quilts made this year. Mrs. E. J. Sylvester aged 86, 1st prize on knitted lace, knit since Sept. 14.

Mrs. Harold Cushman had charge of the hall and did a fine job in arranging and classifying the fancywork. The old-fashioned corner was unique.
At 10:30 came the baby show. There was but one thing lacking at that baby show, and that was Teddy Roosevelt. We did miss him just a little. He would have said: "Them 'ere's my sentiments." The baby show was held on the stage of the grange hall. There were eleven handsome babies and their equally handsome mammams. But there were only ten of them, because you see one mamma had a pair of twins.

Another little mamma aged nine, sat in a low rocker in the center of the stage. The dolly on her knees was certainly very sweet, and when asked her baby's name, she replied very demurely, "Marguerite Kemp." The twins were the Misses Marjorie and Marion Lary, and you couldn't tell which was which. Dwight L. Scribner, Ralph F. Dyer, Harry S. Skillings, Lloyd C. Dyer, Velmora Edwards, Margaret Bruce, Celia Wilham and Annie Brown, were the rest of them. I wish that I might tell you just how sweet each one was, but there, if you were there you know, and if you were not you should have been.

I suppose you want to know about the prizes, but what are you going to do when they are all blue ribbon babies, except give each one a blue ribbon, which they did very promptly. Mrs. Sarah J. Western had charge of the babies and was justly proud of them.
Clifford Small was riding in a small wagon drawn by a pair of matched heifers. There were three ball games played, the Otisfield team winning the ten dollar prize.

F. P. Stone Guarantees a Relief for Dyspepsia. If the Remedy Fails It Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.
The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.
Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is prepared by a process which develops its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid, and without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This perfect combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on your own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Norway at our store.—The Rexall Store, F. P. Stone's, Main street.

Echoes from the Fryeburg Fair.

The Suncock Grange of Lovell had marked their yearling display "Not entered for premium," so the matter of decision for the judges was settled in that direction.

The foot ball game resulted in a score of 30 to 0 in favor of the Westbrook High school.

At an early hour this morning search began for the missing balloon which could not be found last night. Fifty men and numerous telephone lines were used in the search and it was finally found 20 feet from the Saco river, it having taken a westerly course.

The dance at Eastman's hall, Thursday evening, was a great success. Chandler's Orchestra played and 105 couples were on the floor.

Chandler's Band was present at the fair grounds all day Friday and kept the grand stand crowd in good spirits during sooting and time between heats.

Practical Education.

One of the problems which educators have had to face in our public school system has been that of keeping pupils in school through the High school grades. The extent to which boys and girls drop out of the High school courses is strikingly shown by comparing the number of pupils in the first year with number in the last.

Of course many reasons have been advanced to explain this condition of affairs, and many remedies have been proposed. As a matter of fact no one reason will explain this failure of High school pupils to complete their courses, and no one remedy will avail to wholly prevent it.

Great stress has been laid upon the tendency of High schools to lay undue stress upon the importance of college preparatory schools. There has been, undoubtedly much force in this criticism. The High schools have, in a large measure, followed the aims and methods of the old academies, whose work they have, in a large measure supplanted. It is not surprising, therefore, that what may be called the "practical" courses, or those which fit young men and women for business activities without recourse to what is commonly called the "higher education," should have been somewhat slow in their development.

Much is being done, however, to strengthen the public schools of our country along these lines and much more is sure to be accomplished in this direction in years to come. Practical utility is given more and more weight to these days in the laying out of school courses. Manual training for boys, domestic science for girls, and commercial education for both sexes is doing much to hold the attendance in our high schools throughout the full period of the courses.—[Kennebec Journal.]

Buy a Barrel of This Flour

You will find it real economy to buy the famous William Tell Flour by the barrel.

You will not only protect yourself against advances in price due to "wheat corners" and crop conditions, but you will always be sure of the finest grained bread—the whitest bread—the lightest biscuit—the most delicious pastry that can be baked.

Note how much cleaner William Tell is than other flours—due to the costly equipment of the Ansted & Burk Company's mills for protecting the grain and flour in grinding.
